The term bioequalism was coined by William Ariel Mounter, as a way to create an alternative to the theory of fallenangelism, which states that all forms of extraterrestrial and non-human life are fallen angels.

One of the main defenses of bioequalism is the thesis that all forms of extraterrestrial and non-human life are equal to the forms of human life, in the sense that they are other races and other species. For as soon as humans exist, there are other species.
